

PICCARD RACE

For hundreds of years man yearned to get his feet off the ground. In the late 1700's, three French brothers named Montgolfier filled a huge bag with hot air and watched it float up a thousand feet into the air.

It didn't take long for man to hitch a ride and soon came the race to see who could fly higher, longer and further. Balloons became instruments of science, war and sport.

With the advent of the airplane, the latter use died out. Now, it's experiencing a revival in the U.S.

One of the highlights of the American balloonist's year is the annual Piccard Trophy Hot Air Balloon Race held at St. Paul, Minn., in conjunction with their winter carnival.

Balloonists gather at White Bear Lake, near St. Paul, on the morning of the race to get briefed, study wind direction and velocity and select a target about an hour's flying time away which they mark with a big X.

A small prize is given to the first balloonist airborne so there is quite a scramble after the starting signal is given to unpack the gear, spread out the balloons and get the gas burners going. They inflate the balloons by directing hot air from the burners into them.

The pilots fly in open gondolas. Altitude is controlled by the amount of heat the pilot puts into the balloon during the flight. To land they cut off the heat, open a valve and, finally a "rip panel" which deflates the balloon.

The balloonist landing nearest to the target wins the Piccard Trophy. Navigation, not speed, is the determining factor.

Don Piccard, son of famed balloonist Jean Piccard for whom the main trophy is named, was among first to get airborne.

Balloonists competing in the race check the latest weather information and maps of landing area prior to start of race.

Prior to race, Deke Sonnichsen prepares the gondola containing an altimeter and pilot's license.

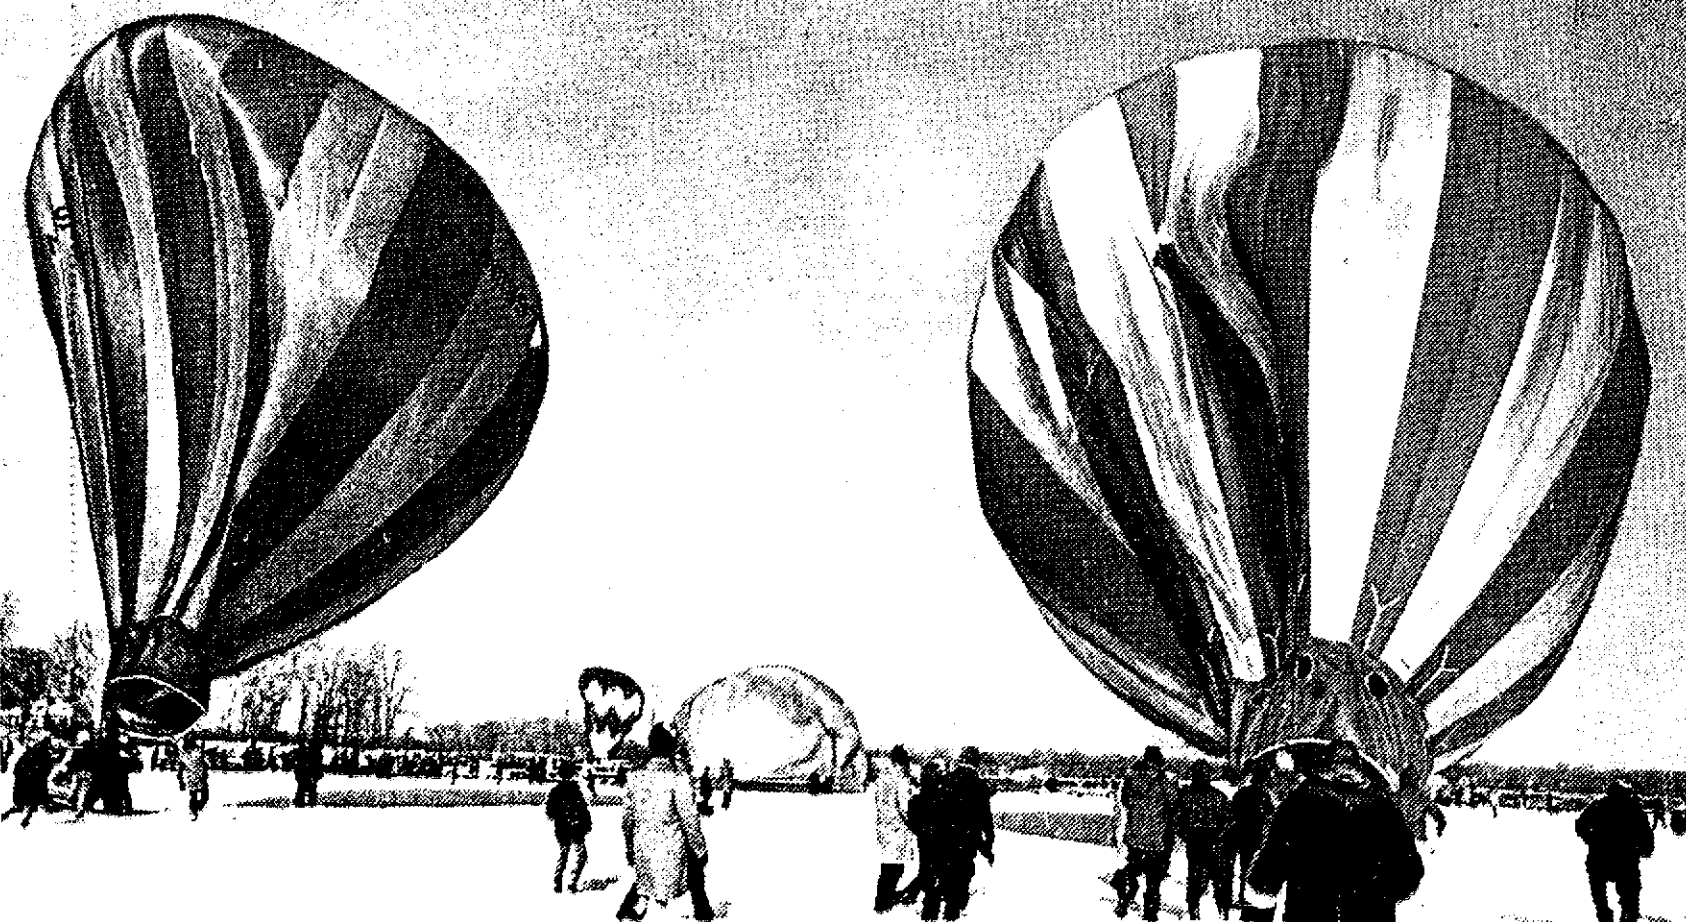

After unpacking their balloon from the wicker gondola, contestants spread it out on ground.

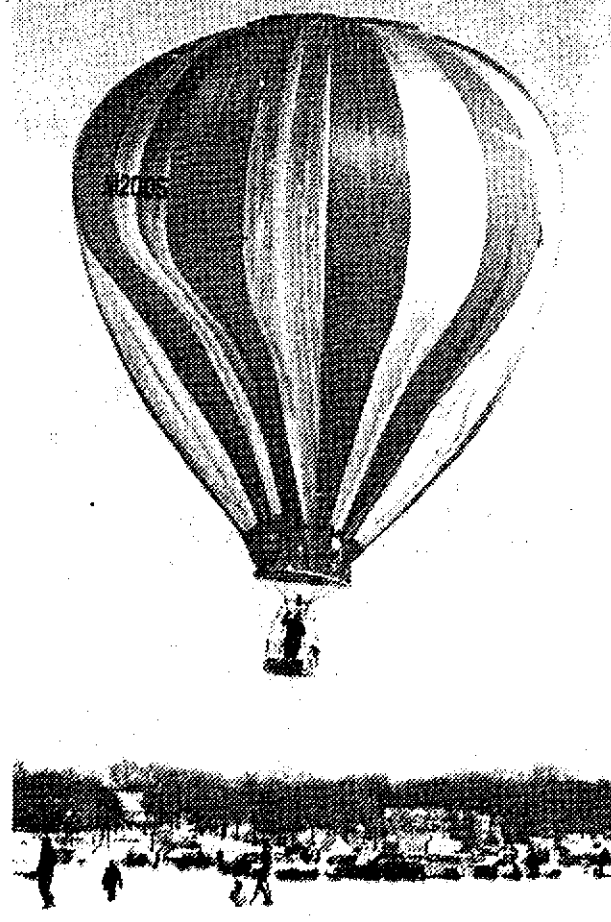

Jim Craig stands on the gondola of his balloon as others in his crew struggle to hold balloon down until fully inflated.

Crew of Bill Barry's balloon, foreground, try to inflate the balloon. Craig crew is further along.

Crews of a number of hot air balloons struggle to inflate the craft at the start of the race as spectators watch. A prize is given to the first balloon to get airborne. Top prize of the race goes to the balloonist landing closest to a target.

Jim Craig, two-time national hot air balloon champion, begins his ascent from frozen lake.

Deke Sonnichsen, winner of the race, points in the direction of his flight after landing.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — CBS News made a valiant effort Tuesday night to present subject much in the headlines and jagged a large segment of the civilian, law enforcement and legal community. It involves allegations of police brutality and disregard of the rights of the accused on one hand and stringent legal restraints on police procedures on the other.

"CBS Reports" presented the tangled and emotion-wrapped subject in some sort of understandable visual form. But it failed simply because it was impossible to get candid shots to illustrate the vital points.

"The Policeman's Lot" summarized the problem by narration and the usual statements by authorities and experts. It quoted the awesome statistics — 14 serious crimes per 1,000 population, a 13 per cent increase in crime last year over 1964, New York City police alone receiving more than four million telephone calls a year, most of them for 25 per cent of all big-city arrests for drunkenness and vagrancy.

But when it came to illustrating the heart of the matter, there were no pictures of policemen interrogating a suspect, and no film showing a suggestion of police brutality.

The program was at its best when it focused on the smaller, more human aspects of police work. There were shots made in a station house as the desk lieutenant handled an assortment of routine problems — family rows, street fights, drunks, cranks, small thieves and rapists.

The point made by the program was that our courts are becoming increasingly sensitive about the rights of the accused with the result that police are finding court-ordered restraints and directives increasingly frustrating. It might have been made more strongly and clearly in a dramatic show like the old "Defenders" series or even by a panel discussion.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The news item seemed to imply the death of a dream:

Costa Mesa, Calif. (AP) — Two Nebraska firms have purchased a group of 45 antique airplanes valued at about $2 million from the Movieland of the Air Museum.

The dream belonged to Paul Mantz and Frank Tallman, two legendary movie pilots. Between them, they had flown a vast number of the great air stunts in Hollywood films, from "Hell's Angels" to "The Carpetbaggers."

While maintaining their movie business, the two men pursued their longtime ambition to open a museum that would preserve the classic airplanes from the earliest days of flight through World War II. Three years ago they opened their Movieland of the Air at Orange County Airport.

Last July Mantz performed his last stunt, losing his life in a makeshift plane he was piloting for "Flight of the Phoenix." Then Tallman had an accident that led to amputation of a leg.

The announcement of the sale to the Nebraska firms sounded like the end of Movieland of the Air. But a call to Tallman indicated otherwise.

"I expect to be in the same business for another hundred years," he announced. "What I did was the same as 20th Century-Fox selling their backlot. I had an immensely valuable capital investment, and I decided to dispose of some of the one-of-a-kind airplanes that were seldom used in movies."

"But I've still got 35 airplanes, and it may be a year before the others leave. So the museum is still open for business and will continue to be. I've kept all the camera planes and movie equipment, so we're still in business for the studios, too."

And Frank Tallman is still available as pilot, he added.

"I've got a new leg and it's working fine," he said. "I walk without a cane now. I've got a sailor's roll, but that will go away with practice."

War Buildup Gamble Has Partly Paid

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration took a calculated risk in deciding, at a perilous point in the Viet Nam war last summer, that it had time to build the regular armed forces gradually instead of mustering thousands of Reservists.

Top officials scanned the intelligence evaluations and reckoned then that:

1. The situation in Viet Nam could be stabilized without a massive and swift mobilization of national resources.

2. The country would not be confronted by a second major crisis elsewhere — a threat that would tax U. S. military resources burdened by the vaulting demands of Viet Nam.

Part of the gamble involved reducing temporarily the combat effectiveness of Army divisions based in the United States so they could undertake the training of thousands of rookies who could not be squeezed into the crowded basic training centers.

So far, at least, the gamble has paid off.

U.S. forces in Viet Nam, swollen from 75,000 last summer to about three times that number, have turned what appeared to be impending defeat into at least a standoff.

And the Communist world has made no attempt to create any serious military diversion elsewhere.

The danger period is not yet past. Restoration of the Army divisions in the United States to full combat readiness is still months away.

But even as strong a critic as Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, conceded Wednesday that the administration plan has worked — although Stennis clearly still opposes the course followed and obviously favored at least a selective callup of Reservists.

"To a large extent, time has rescued us in this matter," Stennis said.

"We have had the time to gear up our production facilities, to let contracts and obtain deliveries of vitally needed equipment, repair parts and supplies, to recruit and train additional manpower.

"Thus, we have been able to overcome a substantial part of our problem."

Christians in China Are Isolated

By JEAN HELLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Red China's increasing bitterness toward the Western world has driven its Christian churches still deeper into their lonely isolation.

The fact that the churches survive in fair numbers despite the pressures of an atheistic government is known only through reports from travelers and refugees.

Chinese Christianity has been cut off from direct contact with world church organizations since the Communists took over in 1949. Dr. Wallace Merwin, an Asian specialist of the National Council of Churches, sees little prospect of a change in the near future. The United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., however, is seeking by various means to hold the door open until a day comes when Red China may relax its hostility.

"There is an article in the constitution of every Communist nation, including China, that guarantees freedom of religion," Dr. Merwin said.

"And in China, there never was the active effort to suppress the church as there was in the early days of Soviet communism. Nevertheless, the fact is, churches in China exist by the grace of the government, and church-to-state relationships are far from ideal."

Because of the tightrope the churches walk, Dr. Merwin said, they dare not attempt to create outside relations while the Peking government holds aloof.

Dr. Archie Crouch, spokesman for the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., said it hopes to make contact with the churches in China through various ecumenical channels, such as the World Council of Churches.

Dr. Crouch said the church in which Presbyterians were most interested is the Church of Christ in China, made up of 17 Protestant denominations, primarily Presbyterians, which had missionaries in China until the Communist revolution forced them all out.

The Church of Christ is the largest single church in China, but there also are many Baptist, Lutheran and Roman Catholic churches.

Prince Expelled by Greek Army

ATHENS (AP) — The Union of Greek Army Reserve Officers has expelled Prince Peter, a cousin of King Constantine, because of criticisms he made in Hong Kong of the Greek government and the royal family.

An announcement published today said the union also asked the Defense Ministry to strip the 56-year-old prince of his rank of colonel in the reserve. Prince Peter was an honorary member of the union and its former president.

Small Dating Problem

Dear Helen: I'm only 14, and although I ac like I hate my mother for not letting me date, really deep down I agree with her. She DOES let boys come to our house for popcorn, cokes, and games, and she was always very nice about these "dates" until recently.

Now she acts like she's mad whenever I tell her someone is coming, saying she and Dad get tired of not being able to use the kitchen which is where we place to entertain my dates, as room, so I really haven't any place to entertain my date, as I can't take them into my bedroom, like some of the mothers let their girls do.

Boys only come over on Saturday night and not every week, and they leave by 10 p.m.

I guess a lot of girls wonder where they can talk to boy friends without bothering the family. Where? — T.Y.

Dear T.: My guess is your mother is "acting" too. She couldn't really complain about your occasional kitchen dates (unless she dislikes the boy) but, if she doesn't make a small fuss, she may figure you'll take her for an easy mark on dating.

That's called "oneupmanship" YOU practice it when you "act mad" about the restrictions you deep down approve. Both of you are looking ahead to the next plateau and trying to make it easier for yourselves.

Best place to entertain your boyfriend? The kitchen's fine with me. Close to the food, which is always pretty close to a 14-year-old boy's heart. — H.

Contact!

Dear Helen: Adults usually stick together, I've noticed, so I may be singing my own death warrant, but I guess that's life.

I'm a 16-year-old boy with very poor vision. The doctor says I am okay for contact lenses, but my parents think I would lose them the first thing, and won't give their go-ahead until I write you. They agreed to let me, if you decide in my favor.

It's this way: I can't stand the way I look in glasses — like some kind of a brain which is pretty bad (not from the adult point of view, of course. I'm an honor student, but I don't want to LOOK like one!

At the moment I have a 20-hour-a-week job that pays $1.25 an hour, and I have saved the down payment. All I ask is that my folks give me credit until I can pay back the loan — I'll finance my own glasses. The job will continue, and so will my grades. I'm able to manage both.

Well Helen do I make — Contacts?

Dear Contacts: Contact! I'm with you all the way. Any boy who can work 20 hours a week and stay on the honor roll, certainly deserves the kind of lenses he's willing to finance.

Insurance will cover losses — if — but contacts aren't lost as much as your parents think. — H.

Dear Helen: Other girls have this problem too, believe it or not. I've been going with this boy for five months and he has never even held my hand! No affectionate gestures at all. We are both 16, and like each other a lot. Will I be just his good buddy all my life? — C.F.

Dear C.: Believe it or not, lots of 16-year-old boys keep their girls' good buddies because they aren't sure how they'll work out as tigers. He'll adjust. Meanwhile, he's a boy any mother could love. — H.

GOPs Tread Lightly on LBJ Program

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans are treading cautiously in what some of them describe as the political mine field of opposition to President Johnson's domestic programs.

Although 125 House Republicans voted to kill Johnson's rent subsidy program and only six supported it, there was no assurance that Senate Republicans will deliver any similarly lopsided count when the issue comes to a vote.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said there has been no attempt to arrive at any party consensus on the matter. He said in an interview he has decided how he personally is going to vote. But he wouldn't tell.

What has come through to some Senate Republicans is that their announced policy of trying to cut Johnson's domestic spending programs to avoid tax increases in an inflationary period could backfire politically.

Even if they were successful

Hope, Benton Men File in No. 2 Race

JAMES H. PILKINTON

LITTLE ROCK — The Democratic party put two more candidates for lieutenant governor Friday — former Judge James Pilkinton of Hope and the Rev. Corbett Mark of Benton.

Mark, 45, filed at 11 a.m. Pilkinton, 52, at 2:30 p.m.

Mark has been chaplain of the state Senate for the last eight years. If elected, he will preside over that body.

Pilkinton, a former legislator and prosecuting attorney, was judge in the 6th Chancery District from 1951 to 1961 when he resigned to re-enter private law practice.

He announced as a candidate for governor in 1958 but withdrew after Gov. Orval Faubus decided to seek a third term.

Other filings Friday: State Rep. Milt Earnhart of Fort Smith for the state Senate, Pos. 2, District 4.

in halting such expenditures as $12 million for the rent supplement and $10 million for a Teachers Corps to operate in poverty-stricken districts, they would have a long way to go toward their objective of achieving from $2 billion to $4 billion in budget cuts.

Any cuts they might engineer with help of conservative Democrats would be at the cost of alienating voters affected by the programs in the areas where the party has been weakest in recent elections.

Although GOP leaders have plugged for substantial budget reductions instead of tax increases, Dirksen has been careful to avoid painting his party members into a corner where they would be found voting against tax hikes if the President might say are necessary to curb inflation.

Any such action would tend to destroy their contention that Johnson is responsible for letting prices get out of hand, an election issue they think will help their cause almost as much as public frustration over the Viet Nam war.

Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., already have joined a dozen liberal Democrats in a drive to restore Johnson's $30 million request for the rent subsidy program. They also want to wipe out what they call a "local veto" they say threatens the program.

Sunday-Monday at Saenger

Connie Francis is riding high, with Harve Presnell as her motor power, as they sing the George and Ira Gershwin song hit, "I've Got Rhythm" in a song-and-dance production number from "When the Boys Meet the Girls," the new MGM musical romance in Paramount and color runs the grand from Lorchin to Broadway and back to Hollywood, with its cast of headliners also starring Herman's Hermits, Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs, Special Guest, Liberace, and Louis Armstrong.

HEAR THESE WORDS

Worship In Church Every Week

HAVE

ONLY

GRACE

...that is greater. Grace that comes from God. Grace that has survived both victory and defeat. Grace that comes through long years of gentle conduct and tender devotion and utter dependance in each other. That's what these life-long partners have been able to garner. God united them and they have depended on Him to keep them. They gave over the control room of their lives to God. Devotion to His cause has sweetened the influences they exert. It hasn't been hard for them to keep up their church attendance record, nor administer to the sick, nor give to the poor. It made a difference when they placed their lives in the hands of God. It will make a difference with you too, for Blessed is the man that walketh in the path of righteousness.

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

WIN AT BRIDGE

One of the bad features about most bridge problems is that the situation just never seems to arise in actual play. Hence it is refreshing to be able to present a problem where the final contract is reached after reasonable bidding. It is taken from Victor Mollo's new book, "The Bridge Menagerie" which so far is unavailable in this country.

According to Victor, when the hand was played at the "Griffins' Club" the contract was three no-trump and West opened a low spade.

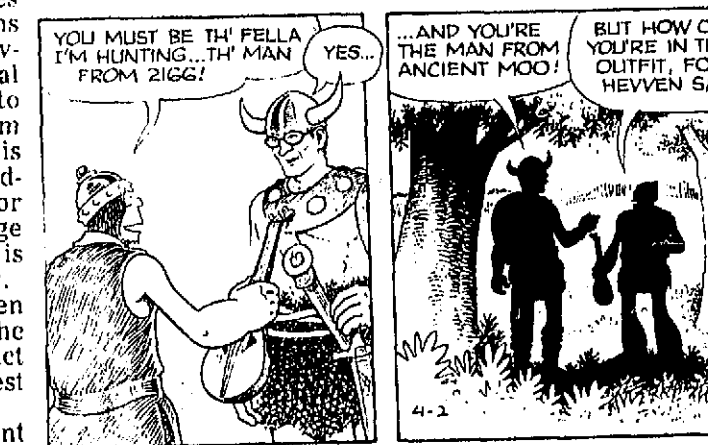

It is unnecessary to point out that a diamond lead would almost surely have beaten the contract. At the table "The Hideous Hog" (a most obnoxious expert) spread his hand immediately and announced, "I will make this against any distribution."

See if you can figure out his plan. Remember you must be able to make your contract against any combination of adverse cards.

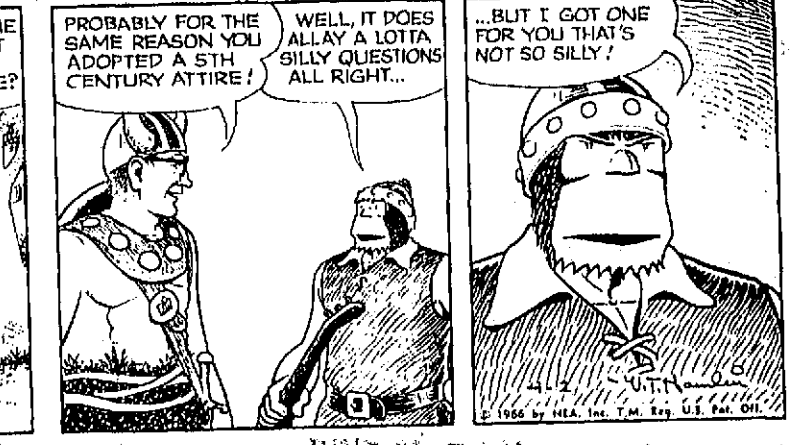

The play is simple as problem plays go. You must win the first spade with the king, lead your spade jack and overtake with dummy's ace. Then you play out dummy's ten of spades and discard your ace of diamonds.

This gives the defense a choice of losing plays. They

Or they can refuse to play diamonds at all. In this case you go about the business of setting up your club suit and wind up with the same nine tricks. This time they consist of two spades, four hearts and three clubs.

Tony C. Lives Down His Living It Up

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — (NEA) — The switchboard operator interrupted a lengthy request for the whereabouts of one Tony Conigliaro to say finding him would be no problem.

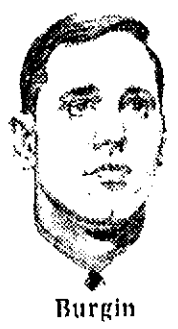

"He's either in the dining room, she said, "or up in his room. He seldom leaves the hotel of an evening."

"What? It's only 7:30 p.m. This is for Tony Conigliaro, of the Boston Red Sox, C.O.N.I.G."

"Yes," she laughed. "I know who you mean Tony C., we all call him down here. Everybody says he's a playboy, but that's not true. He works hard. Hit two home runs against the Yankees today. Such a nice boy."

Tony C., which is what they call him up there in Boston, too, was found in the dining room, eating and reading.

"That's right," Conigliaro said. "I come back to the hotel every evening, rest for awhile, eat and then I'm in bed by 10:30."

Burgin

"What's everybody think I do, go out and party it up until 5 in the morning?"

Something like that, perhaps, Conigliaro, who is 21, has acquired a reputation as one of baseball's real swingers in his two years as an outfielder for the Red Sox.

Well, sorry, but that's not the way it is," he said. "I'll tell you something else, we don't even have a curfew down here, so if I wanted to I could run around all night but I don't."

During the season, manager Billy Herman does have a curfew. Conigliaro missed it more than once last season, and once it cost him $1,000 and the wrath of curfew-conscious teammates.

"That was a lesson for me," he said. "I took that incident seriously. It happened with a month to go in the season and I didn't do anything off the field after that. Then my average picked up .35 points and I hit 12 homers in the month."

His 32 homers led the American League last year, but his .269 average disappointed many because in Boston they think Tony C. should hit .320 and could if he'd quit fooling around and get serious.

"I know that," Tony said. "So I've made a couple mistakes. Isn't that how you're supposed to learn by mistakes? Well, I'm learning and I intend to do better.

"But I've given up trying to please people, especially Boston writers. Some are disappointed when I tell them I don't really go out every night and chase women. I don't know where they get some of their quotes. Writers on the road are pretty good folks, though. They tell it like it is and that's all I ask."

Conigliaro's reputation as a swinger got swinging the first day of his first regular season in 1964. The Red Sox were due to open in New York, but rain caused postponement.

Tony got up, saw the rain and went back to bed. He didn't know that Johnny Pesky, the manager then, had scheduled a practice anyway. A rookie is supposed to be eager, and it was the kind of thing that made league veterans buzz.

Tony also is a singer. He did a night club act in Boston after his first season and now he has two pop records on the market which are doing well.

"That's where I was last night... here in the hotel at the disc jockey's studio, plugging my records," he said.

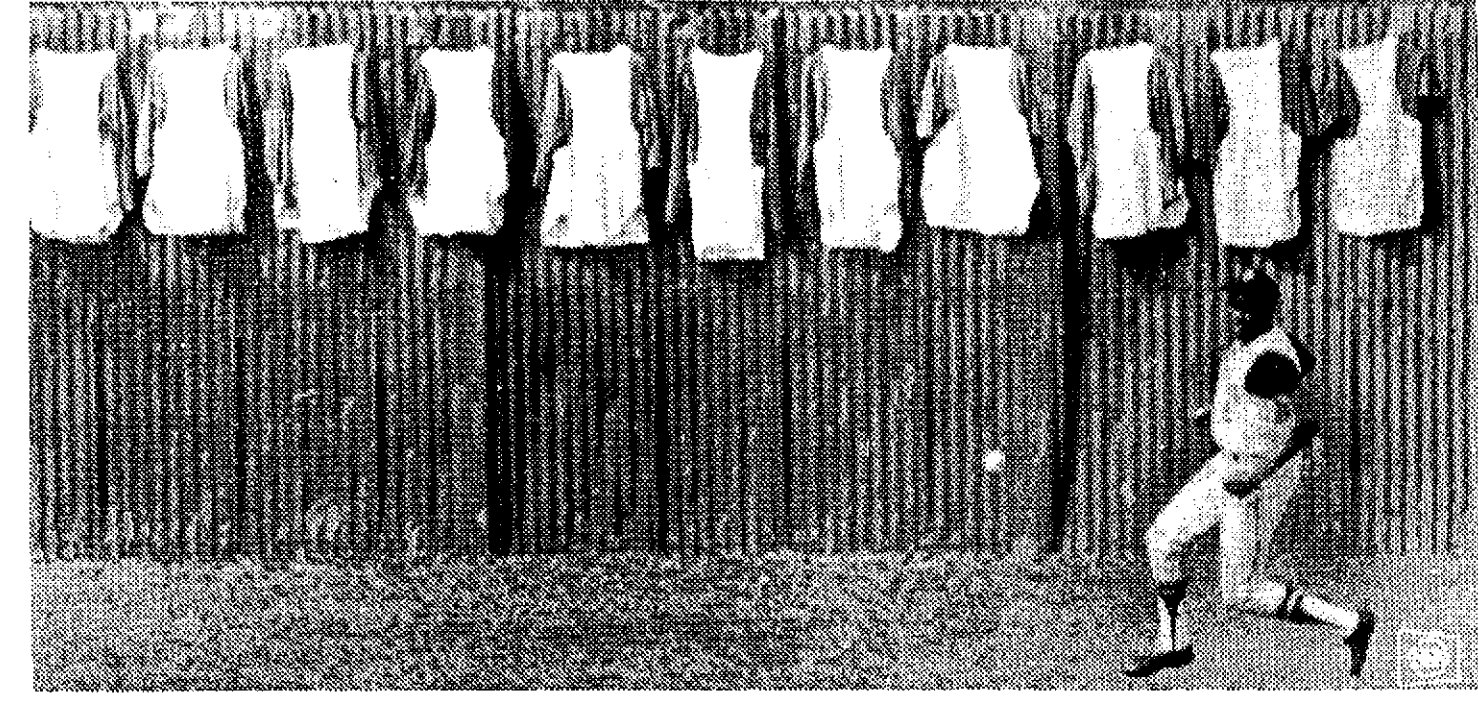

His discs are titled, "When You Take More Than You Give," and "Why Don't They Understand?"

YOUNG MAN'S FANCY—For David (Pee-wee) Maddox of Birmingham, Ala. spring is no time for girls. Just baseball, as his adoring sweetheart, Jan Moore, learns.

WASH DAY BLUES—Willie Stargell of the Pittsburgh Pirates has an unusual audience as he chases a base hit at the Kansas City A's training camp in Bradenton, Fla. It was also wash day before the exhibition game and the A's hung out their sweatshirts in the warm sun.

GOOD WITH THE BAD—New York Mets' Dick Stuart makes every ground ball seem like a James Bond adventure. Top, he makes a difficult backhand stab, but then on a routine ground ball, bottom, he manages to bobble it behind his back.

HANDICAP OVERCOME—Determination and exercise pay off for Ed Coyle, 16, of Upper Darby, Pa. Crutches don't hold him back from working out daily and despite partial polio paralysis since birth, he's on his school's rowing team.

'Don't Call Us, We'll Call You'

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It was as sound a bit of strategy that can evolve in such a stable business as boxing.

Alex Koskowitz, Doug Jones' manager, figured the quickest way to a rematch with Cassius Clay, and a shot at the heavyweight title, was through Chris Dundee.

Chris has friends at the top. His brother, Angelo is Clay's manager.

So for the last six months, Doug Jones has been a regular commuter to Miami Beach, headlining Chris Dundee's boxing shows against such popular American folk heroes as Prentice Snipes, Cody Jones, Chip Johnson, Archie McBride and Lou Bailey.

It was a good thing for Alex. His tan hasn't had a chance to fade.

It wasn't, however, a good thing for Doug Jones.

"If he expects a title fight," said one Madison Square Garden official, "he better start fighting some of the contenders."

"Well," Jones said angrily, "who else am I going to fight? The other contenders won't take a chance with me."

And the young kids like Jerry Quarry don't have the experience yet.

"Clay wouldn't give me a fight. He always promised me but wound up against someone else."

"I was the logical choice to fight him. I gave him the best fight he ever had (a split decision in 1963).

"Instead, now I fight down in Miami Beach. These guys aren't so bad. Let's just say they're unranked. They're pretty tough, but just because people in New York haven't heard of them, they're nobody."

All Jones can do now is wait for some semblance of order in the heavyweight division and maybe then he can have his title fight.

"If Clay goes into the Army," Jones said, "then they'll have to have an elimination series. If Clay loses the title, then I'd be a natural for the new champion. I'm ranked third."

"This whole thing is frustrating. Everything is so confused. I just wish it would be settled so we can concentrate on boxing, not politics."

"Clay is still the one I want, but even if he goes in the Army and as long as someone is wearing the crown, that will be my objective."

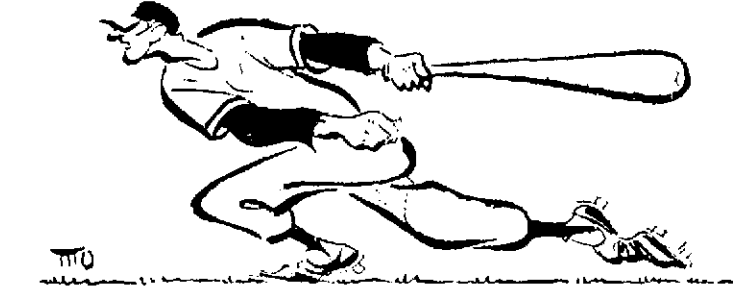

"But a rematch with Clay would be a sweet thing. I just don't think he's as good as everyone says, including himself."

FORM CHARTS

Philadelphia Phillies

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PITCHING—After you've watched Jim Bunning, you understand what the word professional means. He is one of the most intense pitchers in the game and definitely one of the best. Last year was his second consecutive 19-win season for the Phillies. His ERA was 2.60. Gene Mauch's No. 2 starter is lefty Chris Short who was 18-11 with a 2.82 ERA last season. Then there is Ray Culp who finished at 14-10. But after that there is a sharp drop. Ray Herbert is no longer a youngster. Bo Belinsky is. Which is part of his problem. If he would concentrate a little more on pitching, he probably would finish better than his 4-9 mark of last year. Gary Wagner replaces Jack Baldschun as the top man in the bullpen. Ed Roebuck is another fixture as a relief man. Mauch still needs some help and will look for rookies Darold Knowles, Ferguson Jenkins and Grant Jackson to supply it. RATING—B.

INFIELD—Bill White can hit and Bill White can field. That combination should enable him to take the first base starting job away from Dick Stuart who is strictly a one-way man. In Mauch's system there is little room for Stuart. Cookie Rojas, a National League All-Star, and the Phillies leading hitter last season (.303) proved he can do a job when given the chance. Dick Groat, who came to the Phillies in the same deal that brought White from St. Louis, is the pre-season choice at shortstop. Phil Linz, the refugee from the Yankees, may differ. At least, he'll make things interesting at Clearwater. Richie Allen, a .302 hitter, is at third. RATING—B+.

OUTFIELD—The only set position is right field, Johnny Callison's domain. Callison is one of the best defensive outfielders in the league. He had 21 assists last season. On offense, he's the most dangerous batter in the lineup. He had 32 home runs and 104 RBI last year. He's such a determined competitor that his intensity has a tendency to work adversely at times. Adolpho Phillips, Johnny Briggs, Tony Gonzalez and Jackie Brandt, obtained from Baltimore, will battle for the two other spots. RATING—B.

CATCHER—Clay Dalrymple is slow and he doesn't hit very well, but he is smart and he can handle pitchers. Wes Westrum and Jim Hegan made careers of doing that. Bob Uecker, another acquisition from the Cardinals, is the relief man with Rojas available for emergencies. RATING—B.

BENCH—Tony Taylor and Bobby Wine are solid infielders who have started in the past for the Phillies. Linz can play three infield spots and, of course, Cookie Rojas has played everywhere for the Phillies except first base and pitcher. Doug Clemens, an outfielder, and Johnny Herrnstein, a first baseman, are the other reserves. RATING—B.

SUMMARY—One more starting pitcher and the Phillies would be a strong favorite. All winter there has been talk about trading Stuart. If they could get that pitcher, it might be worth it. PREDICTION—4th.

Zambia? Here Comes Cookie!

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — As these words are being written, Chester Carlton Gilchrist, entrepreneur, plenipotentiary and prospector, is in the clouds high over the Atlantic Ocean on a mission to Zambia.

Zambia, the world's third largest producer of copper, better be ready.

Cookie Gilchrist, when he's not playing football for the Denver Broncos or whatever team happens to be employing him at the moment, chases schemes. Right now, he's a director of the Freedom Mines Exploration Co., which owns 67 acres in the central African republic, formerly known as Northern Rhodesia.

"Our land," said Cookie knowledgeably before taking off, "has a copper content of 14.2 per cent," although he was not quite able to explain the significance of that figure.

"We are going over at the invitation of Mr. Zulu," he continued.

Mr. Zulu is a Zambian government representative in Washington, D.C. "We" includes Cookie and his partner, Ron Hatcher. Ron was a fullback, like Cookie, who played at Michigan State and, briefly, for the Washington Redskins in 1962.

"This is my first trip abroad," said Cookie, who does not consider going to Canada very far because he happens to live in Toronto when the mood strikes.

The mood struck him in January when the bank in Denver which promised him employment as a trainee "to become vice president" offered to pay him $75 a week.

"This was very discouraging," said Cookie, whose regular salary with the Broncos runs more than $40,000 a year. He meant it would barely keep him in tip money.

One speculation is not new to him. The call of the wild took Cookie to Timmins, Ont., a year ago to stake mining claims. The region was so remote that Cookie had to fly in by helicopter, and because the whirlybird had no pontoons he jumped out as it hovered eight feet above the water. Cookie landed in three feet of water and waded ashore to stake his claim. The helicopter dipped even lower so Cookie could climb back in.

It'll be nothing like this in Zambia.

"We will wear suits," he explained, "and we will negotiate in Lusaka for 300 acres adjoining the property we already own."

And then?

"We might try the Gold Coast or the Congo or visit Bill Russell's rubber plantation in Liberia. I'm quite excited. I feel a fatherland kind of thing, a feeling of almost going home, although I don't really know where my people came from."

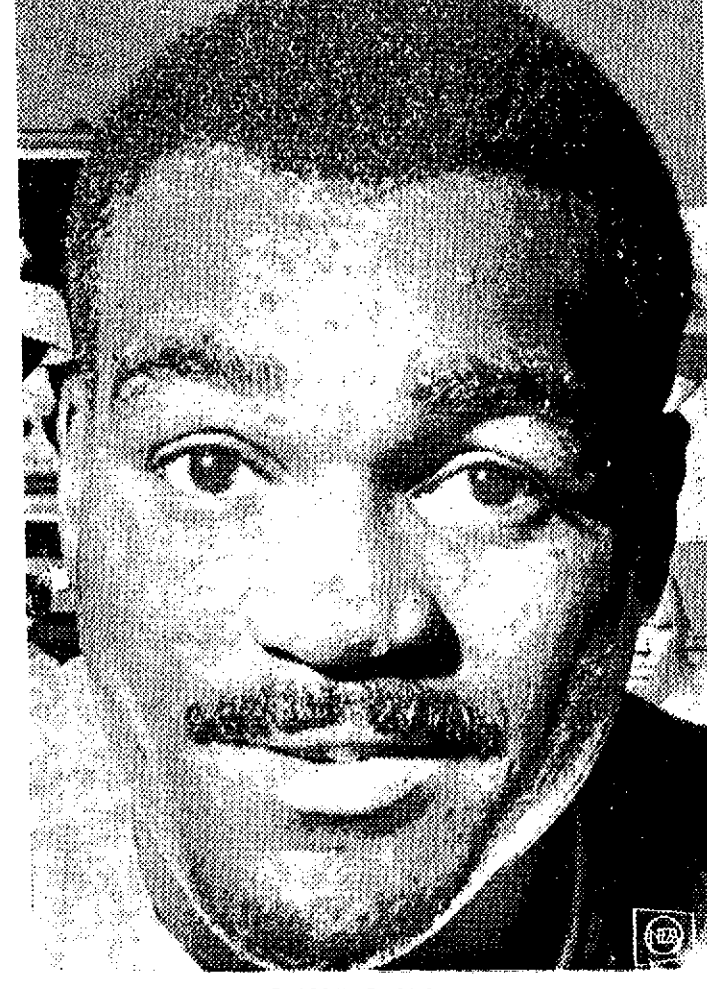

The people of Africa will find Cookie absolutely delightful. He's one of my favorite people in sports. But he's a twist on the old cliché: Cookie's great as long as he doesn't have to work for you. The veteran American Football League star gets very suspicious of employers. Some people have suggested this amounts almost to a phobia, and Cookie could use professional counsel.

"Some people pay 50 bucks," he shrugged. "I read Karl Menninger. I pay $3.25."

Is he happy as a player in Denver?

"I can tell you better," he answered capily, "if I have some shekels in my pocket."

Like the $100,000 or so he hopes to discover in Zambia.

One Word Or Two?
The editorial crisis over the spelling of the place where we are at war has too long endured. Many of the columnists, The New York Times, and Webster's insist so far on "Vietnam." The wire services say "Viet Nam." The State Department evidently holds a dash in between: "Viet-Nam."

Since "Viet" is the name of the people and "Nam" simply means "South," the phrase is said to mean "Southern country of the Viet" (North and South Vietnamese). And two words looks preferable.

In any case the problems of editing, particularly in an age of electronic journalism are endless and needless, really. We certainly are inclined to agree with Barbara Richards of West Richfield, Ohio, who wrote to Newsweek recently: "How can we expect to approach the bargaining table on major issues in the war when we cannot decide how to spell the name of the country involved?" — Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times

Adult And Unaware
It would be bad, if true, that price-fixing by publishers is forcing libraries to pay a third more for children's books. It is sadder, if true, as a senator says, that children's books account for one half of the circulation of public libraries.

The eagerness of children for books, as suggested by this statistic, is wonderful. But there is something tragic about a school and library education system which doesn't make book learning stick among adults. Of course, many grown ups are too busy — or think they are too busy — to have much time for reading. Undoubtedly some of the juvenile reading is forced upon the young by parents and teachers. Still it is more than unfortunate that the greater half of population, which is adult, evidently lags in its share of library use.

This may point the terrible delusion that education stops with school and college. It suggests, indeed, that while education can force the children to books, it is no producing people whose appetite for the instruction and enjoyment of books does not languish but too often dies. This may indicate that many of those who think they are educated never were really educated at all. — Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer

Super LBJ Unveiled in Comic Book

NEW YORK (AP) — Is it a bird? Is it a plane? No, it's "Super LBJ," unveiled today in a comic book corny enough to make Batman blush.

The book, called "The Great Society," caricatures President Johnson as Superman, with a supporting cast based largely on characters from old comic strips and radio programs.

It has the same irreverent approach to presidential affairs as "The New Frontier Coloring Book" and "The JFK Coloring Book" which appeared during the administration of the late John F. Kennedy.

The book's villains include Businessman, a U.S. metals tycoon; Gaullefinger, a big-nosed Frenchman; Fu Man Lai, a wily oriental; Dr. Nyet, a Khrushchev-shaped Soviet, and the "Sicko Kid," a bearded Cuban in military fatigues.

The good guys are Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara as Captain Marvelous, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey as the Shadower, Secretary of State Dean Rusk as the Phantom and Everett M. Dirksen, the Senate minority leader, as the Disagreeing Hornet.

Mrs. Johnson, in a scanty but fetching costume of red, white and blue, appears as "Wonderbird."

Lurking in the wings throughout the action are a couple of oddballs dubbed Bobman and Teddy who are plotting to take over the Great Society. They bear a great resemblance to Sens. Robert F. and Edward M. Kennedy.

Best line in the book is uttered by Captain Marvelous while making a lone stand against what he calls "the poorly clad, underfed, fanatical Chinese army."

Says the indomitable captain: "I should have closed down their bases as an economy move long ago!"

Railway Strike Appears to Be About Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 34-state railroad strike today entered its third day but resumption of service appeared near despite a fresh dispute over possible court action against the striking firemen's union.

Facing a federal court injunction, union president H. E. Gilbert offered to end the walkout if the eight railroads involved agree there will be no reprisals against the 8,000 strikers and that no damage suits or contempt of court actions will be pressed.

The railroads' chief negotiator, J. E. Wolfe, promptly replied: "Pending litigation will be progressed." He said the question of court action for damages will be up to each railroad president.

Later, Wolfe added he believed the strike will end today. Gilbert said he was awaiting reports from vice presidents of his AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, who were getting in touch with the individual railroads. "I am certain agreement will be reached," he said.

The strike was against these eight railroads: Union Pacific, the country's largest; the Missouri Pacific; Illinois Central; Seaboard Air Line; Central of Georgia; Grand Trunk Western, Pa.

The strike disrupted service on 43,000 miles of line and bit into the nation's economy. It caused some 100,000 persons to be thrown off their jobs or work a shorter day, resulted in traffic jams, tied up freight movements, stranded passengers and delayed the mails.

Firemen walked off their jobs at 12:01 a.m. Thursday on expiration of a 1963 federal arbitration board ruling that carriers could eliminate up to 90 per cent of their yard and freight for men. Since then, about 18,000 firemen's jobs have been wiped out.

More Taxes to Squeeze Home Budget

NEW YORK (AP) — The rising cost of living and rising tax payments could put a pincher squeeze on many a family budget.

This means that people would have less money after taxes with which to pay the higher prices that already are here or announced as on the way.

It is one aspect — a highly personal one for most families — of the debate over the threat of inflation and the need of higher taxes as a curb on future and steeper price increases.

The tax bite already is sharper. Talk of a further boost at the federal level blows hot and cold.

Tax payments that already have gone up this year are the Social Security levies, excise taxes on new cars, and on phone calls. Soon to shrink many paychecks will be larger withholding for federal income taxes, although the total bill will stay the same — at least for the time being. Many state and community taxes have gone up, too, with more increases apparently on the way.

The rise in the cost of living has been pretty well distributed all along the line of goods and services for more than a year. But in recent months the biggest item has been a jump in food prices.

Here, government officials are holding out hopes that the worst may be over, or nearly so. They expect food supplies to expand during the spring and summer.

One disturbing prospect is the probable effect of the big jump which wholesale prices took last month — the biggest rise since the Korean War. It will take time for many of these price hikes to work their way into the price tags on consumer items.

Higher prices usually are classed as the sign of, or end product of, inflation. Higher taxes are advocated as a curb on inflation.

The argument is that if individuals and corporations have to pay larger tax bills, they won't have the money to bid up prices on consumer or industrial goods and materials. A spending spree by consumers make price increases both easier and more likely.

Americans Must Take a Firm Stand, Fight for Ideals or Perish—Old But True Words Hard to Find Out Just Who Does What

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Six years ago a college student we knew penned these words. "Americans Arise! Where is your national pride? We, as Americans, have come to the point where we can no longer stand by and watch Communism stifle the free world by means of propaganda and bluffing methods. If the American people do not take a firm stand and fight for the ideal upon which our country was founded, we will surely perish."

Those words are as true today as they were when they were written. Is he still wondering about our national pride? You read headlines about various demonstrations and draft card burning and have to ask? War makes no sense, for in the end, everyone loses. But on the subject of understanding human nature as related to war, Mark Twain wrote a book, "The Mysterious Stranger," in 1898. In it he said:

"There has never been a just one, never an honorable one — on the part of the instigator of the war. I can see a million years ahead and this rule will never change in so many as half a dozen instances. The loud little handful — as usual — will shout for the war. The pulp will — warily and cautiously — object — at first, the great big, dull bulk of the nation will rub its sleepy eyes and try to make out why there should be a war and will say earnestly and indignantly, 'It is unjust and dishonorable, and there is no necessity for it.' Then the handful will shout louder."

"A few fair men on the other side will argue and reason against the war with speech and pen, and at first will have a hearing and be applauded; but it will not last long; those others will outshoot them, and presently the antiwar audiences will thin out and lose popularity. Before long you will see this curious thing: the speakers stoned from the platform, and free speech strangled by hordes of furious men who in their secret hearts are still at one with those stoned speakers — as earlier — but do not dare to say so."

"And now the whole nation — pulp and all — will take up the war cry and shout itself hoarse, and mob any honest man who ventures to open his mouth, and presently such mouths will cease to open. Next, the statesmen will invent cheap lies, putting the blame upon the nation that is attacked, and every man will be glad of those conscience-soothing fantasies and will diligently study them, and refuse to examine any refutations of them, and thus he will by and by convince himself that the war is just and will thank God for the better sleep he enjoys after this process of grotesque self-deception."

Senator Fulbright quoted the above portion of Twain's writing in a recent speech before the Senate and added, "Past experience provides little basis for confidence that reason can prevail in an atmosphere of mounting war fever. In a contest between a hawk and a dove the hawk has a great advantage, not because it is a better bird but because it is a bigger bird with lethal talons and a highly developed will to use them. In China this is the year of the horse; in America it appears to be the year of the hawk."

Speaking of Kintner he said: "He will be at the service of the President, and if he needs to play first or second or third base, I hope he can do it. He is equipped to do it. I don't want him to play any position too long, because he gets too familiar with you (newsmen), and familiarity breeds contempt."

Johnson never got around to mentioning Rostow in his reply. But the President's remarks were revealing.

Speaking of Kintner he said: "He will be at the service of the President, and if he needs to play first or second or third base, I hope he can do it. He is equipped to do it. I don't want him to play any position too long, because he gets too familiar with you (newsmen), and familiarity breeds contempt."

Johnson thus voiced his basic philosophy that White House assistants should be jack of all trade, without rigid assignments. And perhaps, in his reference to familiarity with newsmen, he was hinting at his attitude toward press relations. In any event, he has had as many press secretaries in three years and four months as any president in history.

Marines Seek But Can't Find Many Viet Cong

By THOMAS A. REEDY
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two U.S. Marine divisions working out of Da Nang and Chu Lai broke up into numerous small units today in a new search for the elusive Viet Cong and reported that 581 various operations turned up only a handful of the enemy.

The Leathernecks conducted patrols, laid ambushes, set up listening posts, scout, sniper and search and destroy missions in the central coastal plains once bristling with bands of Viet Cong.

They killed eight Viet Cong, captured two and got two weapons. Eight sampans were sunk. The experience of the Marines was duplicated by the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airborne Division in a two-brigade search for a North Vietnamese regiment which put up a stiff fight in the Chu Phong mountains along the Cambodian border. But now the enemy regiment apparently has chosen to fade away.

The only contact made today was a flash fight with a platoon. Associated Press photographer Rick Merron reported one company of the Air Cavalry ran into the platoon at 1 p.m. only about 100 yards from the spot where the troops killed more than 100 of the enemy Wednesday. The firefight was brisk but brief. Nine Viet Cong were killed.

The 2nd Brigade of the 25th Infantry Division scouring 25 miles northwest of Saigon also failed to uncover any major Viet Cong units. But it had minor contact today when an enemy grenade attack was launched from ambush. The infantry retorted in kind, killing two Viet Cong and capturing a Chinese Communist carbine, four U.S. hand-grenades and documents.
